I write on behalf of Somali Women's and Children's Support Network and our clients in thanks to Parents Engaged in Education. We strongly support your mission to empower parents with the skills and knowledge to support their children and make the educational experience at school better for all children.

Recently, we have distributed 24 donations of at home learning kits provided by Parents Engaged in Education to families with children displaced from school due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Many families in the community we serve lack the resources to create a suitable learning experience for their children whose educations have been disrupted, and the lack of adequate learning supplies places many children at a disadvantage relative to their peers. These donations have been immensely helpful to creating a learning environment more comparable to regular schooling, such that children who have been touched by the global health crisis will not be adversely affected on their journey to academic success.

Every child should have the right to a fulfilling education. We look forward to continuing our partnership with you in eliminating disparities in education in our community and achieving academic equity. Thank again for your donations.

Sincerely,

Farhia Warsame
Executive Director
